Actum in primis, conventum et concordatum extitit inter eundem dominum regem Franciæ et nos, procuratorio nomine dicti domini regis, quod iidem domini Franciæ et Norwegiæ reges, ac heredes eorum sibi in regnis suis successuri, extunc ad invicem perpetuis temporibus veri et fideles amici, et inter regna prædicta unitatis, concordiæ et amicitiaæ perpetuæ fœdera servabuntur. . . .

Porro de magnifico principe . . . Scotiæ rege illustri (qui pro hiis quæ tenet a dicto rege Franciæ in regno suo fidelitatis debito sibi hodie est astrictus), inter ipsum dominum regem et nos procuratorem prædictum, nomine quo supra, specialiter est conventum, quod dicto domino nostro regi Norwagiæ, vel successoribus suis, in guerris quas facerent contra ipsum regem Scotiæ, vel successores suos, nullum ipse rex Franciæ vel successores sui præstare tenebuntur auxilium vel juvamen. Et si rex ipse Scotiæ, vel successores sui, ipsi Franciæ regi aut successoribus suis in posterum guerram facerent, dictus dominus noster Norwegiæ rex, vel successores sui, auxilium vel favorem ipsi regi Franciæ præstare pari modo nullatenus tene-videbitur expedire, pro nobis et nostro nomine contrahendum et suscipiendum in quantitate quacumque, et etiam quantacumque, stipulandum, promittendum, obligandum nos, successores nostros et incolas regni nostri, ac nostras et ipsorum terras et bona omnia mobilia et immobilia, præsentia et futura, et jurisdictioni cujuslibet principis vel potentis aut judicis, subponendum, præstandum quoque in animam nostram cujuslibet generis sacramentum; et omnia faciendum quæ circa præmissa fuerint oportuna.

Dantes dicto procuratori nostro liberam et generalem potestatem et speciale mandatum omnia et singula suprædicta nomine nostro, et quæcumque alia in judicio et extra judicium, faciendi, quæ nos faceremus si præsentem essemus, et quæ potest facere quilibet verus et legitimus procurator, etiam si mandatum exigant speciale.

Volentes omnia et singula quæ mandatum nostrum exigent speciale sub prædicta generali et libera potestate a nobis sibi tradita comprehendendi ac si omnia et singula singulariter et nominatim expressa forent in præsentem procuratorio et inserta. Promittentes sub ypotheca bonorum et rerum nostrarum, si necesse fuerit, judicio sisti et iudicatum solvi; nosque ratum habituros et gratum quicquid per dictum procuratorem nostrum in præmissis omnibus et singulis et ea qualitercumque tangentibus actum fuerit sive etiam ordinatum. In cujus rei testimonium præsentibus litteris nostrum fecimus apponi sigillum.

Data viij kalendas Julii [June 24], anno Domini m.c.c. nonagesimo quinto.

buntur; nec prædicto regi Scotiæ, vel successoribus suis, idem Franciæ rex, aut sui, in guerris quas contra memoratum regem Norwegiæ, vel successores suos, haberet, auxilium aut jvamen præstabunt, nisi rex ipse Scotiæ, aut successores sui, ipsius regis Franciæ, aut successorum suorum, paratus esset stare arbitrio vel iudicio de quæstionibus et causis pro quibus fieri contingeret dictas guerras.

Si vero idem rex Scotiæ de omnibus quæstionibus et querelis quas Norwegiæ rex prædictus dominus noster usque in diem præsentem habet, vel habere potest, contra ipsum, dicti regis Franciæ se vellet arbitrio vel iudicio submittere, hinc ad animum actum est inter eundem dominum regem Franciæ et nos, procuratorem prædictum, nomine quo supra, quod dictus dominus noster rex Norwegiæ et successores sui in casu hujusmodi generalem confœderationem inter ipsum dominum regem Franciæ et nos, procuratorio nomine quo supra initam, etiam quantum ad ipsum regem Scotiæ et successores suos, tenebuntur dicto regi Franciæ et successoribus suis in omnibus observare. Et ipse similiter Franciæ rex eidem regi Norwegiæ et suis, servata tamen forma confœderationis ejusdem.

Actum est etiam et expresse conventum inter sæpedictum dominum regem Franciæ et nos, procuratorem prædictum, nomine quo supra, quod quia sæpefatus Scotiæ rex in guerra prædicta, quam contra præfatum Angliæ regem habet dictus rex Franciæ, sibi debet assistere ope consilii et auxilii efficacis, et guerram facere contra eum, ne ab hiis distrahi valeat vel etiam impediri, sæpedictus dominus noster Norwegiæ rex, vel successores sui, prælibato Scotiæ regi vel suis, occasione aliquarum quæstionum vel dissentionum ortarum præteritis temporibus inter eos, prædicta guerra dicti domini regis Franciæ durante, guerram facere non poterunt, aut aliter eis molestationes inferre, nec novas causas fingere, vel occasionem præstare, fraudem, dolum aut machinationem aliquam adhibere, propter quos guerram aliquam, guerra dicti domini regis Franciæ prædicta durante, fieri oporteat inter ipsos, immo bona fide id vitabunt. . . .

Tenor antem literarum procuratariarum talis est.

² On the 3d January a commission had been granted by the king to Spaldington, but with powers less extensive than those with which he was now invested. It did not authorize him, for instance, to impress men for the vessels. It is entered on the Patent Roll.

Among the miscellaneous Rolls in the Public Record Office is one which relates to this fleet, from which the following extract is given. From the previous portions of the account, it appears that about eight vessels were at this time employed in the service. Of these, the barge of Newcastle carried 120 men, that of Grimsby, 80, and that of Wintringham, 52. The rest averaged about 25 men :—

TRANSLATION.

In the twenty-fourth year of the reign of king Edward of England, Easter day fell on the day of the Annunciation of our Lady.² On the Wednesday in Easter week, being the twenty-eighth day of March, the before-named king Edward passed the river Tweed with 5000 armed horse, and 30,000 footmen, and lay that night in Scotland at the priory of Coldstream, and the Thursday at Hutton,³ and on the Friday⁴ he took the town of Berwick-upon-Tweed by force of arms without tarrying. On the same day, sir William Douglas, who was within the castle, surrendered it, and the king lay that night in the castle, and his people in the town, each person in his house which he had taken; and the king remained there nearly a month.

On the day of St. George, 24th April,⁵ news came to the king that they of Scotland had besieged the castle of Dunbar, which belonged to the earl Patrick, who held strongly with the king of England. It was upon a Monday¹ that the king sent his troops to raise the siege. Before they came there the castle had surrendered, and they of Scotland were within. When the troops of the king of England came there, they besieged the castle with three hosts on the Tuesday² that they arrived before it. On the Wednesday,³ they who were within sent out privately, and on Thursday and Friday⁴ came the host of Scotland all the afternoon to have raised the siege of the Englishmen. And when the Englishmen saw the Scotchmen, they fell upon them and discomfited the Scotchmen, and the chase continued more than five leagues of way, and until the hour of vespers. And there died sir Patrick de Graham, a great lord, and 10,055 by right reckoning.

On that same Friday,⁵ by night, the king came from Berwick to go to Dunbar, and lay that night at Coldingham, and on the Saturday⁶ at Dunbar, and on the same day they of the castle

TRANSLATION.

Be it remembered that our lord the king has appointed on the second day of April, at Berwick, that sir Robert de Clifford should have in his company 100 men-at-arms and 500 footmen, for whom he shall take a fixed sum during the said time, for the men of his own household, and shall be employed in the defence of the march of Scotland until three weeks after the Easter next ensuing. And the 140 men-at-arms shall be at the king's wages, and the 500 footmen.

And during this said period he must do his utmost to take hostages of the forest of Selkirk, the moor of Cavers, Liddisdale, Eskdale, Ewisdale, Annandale, Moffatdale, Nithsdale, and Galloway, and the other lands which have come to the peace of our lord the king. And if there are any persons who are suspected, let them be made to give hostages in like manner. And the said sir Robert shall receive the arrears of the 800*l.* which our lord the king owes him for his residence in the parts of Scotland

TRANSLATION.

Whereas . . . we have sworn upon the holy Gospels.

And for ourselves, and for each of us severally, we have done homage to our lord the king aforesaid in these words : 'I become your liege man of life and of members and of earthly honour against all persons who can live and die.' And the same king, our lord, received them in this form : 'We receive this for the lands whereof you are at present seised, saving our right and the right of others, and excepting the lands which John Balliol, formerly king of Scotland, gave you since we surrendered to him the realm of Scotland, and also excepting those lands which we have seised before you have come to our peace.'

Moreover, we all, and each of us severally, have done fealty to our lord the king of England aforesaid in these words. 'I shall be true and loyal, and I will keep faith and loyalty to the king of England and to his heirs of life and of members and of earthly honour, against all persons who can live or die, and never will I bear arms for any one, nor will I give advice or aid against him nor against his heirs in any case which can happen, and I will Lambertone, filius quondam Ricardi de Lambertone, æternam in Domino salutem.

Noverit universitas vestra me teneri et obligari domino Edwardo, Dei gratia regi Angliæ illustri, in duodecim bollis boni frumenti et pacabilis eidem domino regi solvendis infra castrum de Strivelyne, vel cuicumque nomine suo præsentis litteras deferenti, ad festum beati Michaelis archangeli anno gratiæ M.CC nonogesimo sexto, sine ulteriori dilatione; videlicet, pro illis duodecim bollis frumenti quas ex mutuo dicti domini regis de Thoma de Cormayl, clerico suo, per visum domini David le Graunt, tunc vicecomitis de Strivelyn, recepi. Et si contingat me in solutione dicti frumenti infra dictum castrum ad dictum festum defecisse, quod absit, obligo me et hæredes meos ac executores meos, et omnia bona mea mobilia et immobilia, ubicunque fuerint inventa, ad voluntatem ballivorum domini regis castri de Strivelyn, qui pro tempore fuerint, fore compellendos, quousque de dictis duodecim bollis frumenti prædicto domino regi, seu cuicumque præsentis loco ipsius regis portanti, ad prædictos diem et terminum fuerit satisfactum per me vel hæredes meos, aut executores, una cum dampnis et jacturis, si quæ vel quas habuerit, occasione prædictarum duodecim bollarum non solutarum ad prænominatos diem et terminum per visum virorum fidedignorum sine aliquo strepitu judiciali, nullo obstante proposito. In cujus rei testimonium præsentibus litteris sigillum¹ meum apposui.

In the Archives de la Chambre des Comptes at Lille formerly existed another original letter of King Philip upon the same subject, of which only a transcript is now extant. It recites the import of the mandate given above, adding that further aggression had been committed since the date of the last letter, the particulars of which are said to be contained in a schedule forwarded along with this document, but of which no copy remains. The goods so arrested are, by the king's orders, to be delivered up to the bearers, "Thomæ Ranulphi et Roberto Doukes (?) militibus, nunciis dilectissimi nostri, illustris regis Scotiæ." Rex omnibus ad quos, etc., salutem.

Inspeximus cartam quam dilectus et fidelis noster Ricardus de Burgo, comes Ultoniæ et dominus Connactensis, fecit dilecto et fideli nostro Jacobo Senescallo Scotiæ, et Egidie sorori ipsius comitis, de castro de Roo, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, in liberum maritagium, in hæc verba.

Sciant præsentés et futuri quod ego Ricardus de Burgo, comes Ultoniæ et dominus Connactensis, dedi, concessi, et hac præsentí carta mea confirmavi, domino Jacobo Senescallo Scotiæ, et Egidie sorori meæ, in liberum maritagium, castrum meum del Roo, et burgum, et totum dominicum pertinens ad dictum castrum, et totum dominicum, servitium, et redditus terrarum Anglicorum feofatorum per me in le Kenauth ad dictum castrum del Roo pertinens, ex parte orientali aquæ de Roo, cum insula ejusdem aquæ juxta castrum prædictum; et etiam totam terram meam de Rennard, cum omnibus firmariis et feofatis, tam in burgo quam extra burgum, ad dictas terras pertinentibus. Tenenda et habenda prædictis domino Jacobo et Egidie uxori suæ, et eorum heredibus de corporibus eorum procreatis, in liberum maritagium et in liberam baroniam, de me et heredibus meis, in pratis, pascuis, boscis, planis, moris et mariscis, in stagnis, aquis, Ego vero dictus Ricardus et heredes mei prædictum castrum, burgum et terras prædictas prædictis domino Jacobo et Egidie sponsæ suæ, et eorum heredibus de corporibus eorum procreatis, sicut præscriptum est, contra omnes homines et feminas warantizabimus, acquietabimus et in perpetuum defendemus.

Ut autem hæc mea donatio, concessio et præsentis cartæ meæ confirmatio robur perpetuæ firmitatis futuris temporibus obtineat, hoc præsens scriptum sigilli mei munimine roboravi. His testibus, domino Johanne comite Warennæ, domino Ricardo filio Johannis, domino Johanne de Soules, domino Willelmo filio Warini, domino Waltero de Lindseye, domino Eustachio le Povere, et domino Nicholas de Chambelle et aliis.

Et quia intendimus quod dictæ donatio et concessio quoad libertates prædictas firmæ et stabiles esse non poterunt futuris temporibus, secundum legem et consuetudinem regni nostri, nos de gratia nostra speciali libertates prædictas prædictis Senescallo et Egidie pro nobis et heredibus nostris duximus concedendas, habendas de nobis et heredibus nostris eisdem Senescallo et Egidie, et heredibus de ipsorum corporibus procreatis in perpetuum; omnia alia in prædicta carta contenta, quantum in nobis est, tenore præsentium confirmantes, sicut eadem carta rationabiliter testatur. TRANSLATION.

It is appointed by the king and his council that no passage of wools or of hides, of messengers or of merchants, take place anywhere within the realm of Scotland, excepting in places where are the cocket-seals, and at Kirkcudbright; but before they are exported from Kirkcudbright let the cocket-seal be sent there by the earl of Warren and by the council which the king has in Scotland. And that in each place two of the most honest and loyal men of the same place, associated with the keepers of the customs of our lord the king, be appointed and sworn to keep the port so closely by day and night, that no messenger carrying letters or message from abroad pass in any manner without especial warrant from the king, nor any other person carrying closed letters or other suspicious thing, but let such a person be taken and kept in prison until the king shall have ordered his pleasure therein. And all the mariners who shall pass, every time that they set out, totes les fiez qe eus sey moveront, jurgent e soient examinez, e les marchauntz soient quitz por lour serement quil ne porteront lettres ne message de quey mal peusse venir au roy ou au royaume, e qe eus ne feront de dela de fet ne de dit, par art ne par engyn, nule chose qe seit nusaunce au roy ou au reaume. E veut le roi qe les messagers soient estreytement serchez e examinez, ensi qe nule rien ny passe dont mal ou damage peusse avenir au roi ou au reaume. E si nul messenger ou autre oveske lettre ou autre chose damajouse au roi ou au reaume seit trouvee, seit son cors pris e seit enveye au roi, ou qil seit oveske les lettres ou garde jeske taunt qe le roi eit maunde sa volente. E bien se avise cheskun des gardeyns qe nul marchaund Lombard (a queus le passage ad este eynz ces heures defendu, e est unkore), ne passent en nule manere. E si nul veigne pur passer, tauntost seit pris e arestee e sauvement garde taunt qe le roi eit maunde sa volente.

As autre portz du reaume qui ne sont nomez de sus, veut le roi qe les viscontes des leus chescuns, en chescun port de sa baillie, graunt e petit, assignent deus prodes-shall swear and be examined, and the merchants shall be free by their oath that they will carry no letters nor message whence mischief might arise to the king or the realm, and that they will bring nothing from abroad by deed or by word, by art or by fraud, which may be hurtful to the king or the realm. And the king wishes that the messengers be closely searched and examined, so that nothing may pass whereby harm or damage may come to the king or the realm. And if any messenger or other person with a letter or other thing dangerous to the king or the kingdom be found, let him be taken and sent to the king, or let him be kept in prison with his letters until the king shall have told his pleasure. And let each of the wardens take especial care that no merchant of Lombardy (to whom the passage has already been forbidden, and is so still) pass in anywise. And should any such come to pass, let him be forthwith taken and safely kept until the king shall have sent his pleasure.

In the other ports of the realm which are not named, the king wills that the sheriffs of every place, in each port of his bailliwick, great and small, should appoint two good men of the place hommes des leus quil ne lessent passer nul messenger ne marchaunt saunz garaunt du roi. E si les mariners des leus voillent aler a la mer, a tutes les fetthes jurgent e seient examinez quil ne portent de dela lettre ne message qe peusse este nuisaunt au roi ou au reaume.

A.D. 1296-7.

E est ordene qe ceste ordenence seit crie e pupplie par le reaume en leus e viles solempnes, ensi qe nul se peusse escuser par ignoraunce. E entendent le roi e son conseil qe si nul messenger ou autre de dela arrive a nul de ces ports, ou autre, qe la fourme desus dite seit garde endreit de eus.

En mesme la manere . . . au Johan conte de Garenne, gardeyn del reaume e de la terre d'Escoce, qe cele forme face garder e fermement tenir en totes les viles ou les coketz sont en Escoce, e ausint a Kyr-cudbright, solom les articles qe ly sont enveez.

to prevent any messenger or merchant from passing without the king's warrant. And if the mariners of these places wish to go to sea, let them be sworn each time and examined that they do not carry abroad any letter or message which might be hurtful to the king or the realm.

And it is appointed that this ordinance be proclaimed and published throughout the kingdom in the chief places and towns, so that no man may excuse himself by ignorance. And the king and his council intend, if any messenger or other person arrive from abroad at any of these ports, or any other, that the form above said be observed in regard to them.

In the same manner . . . to John earl of Warren, warden of the realm and land of Scotland, that he cause this form to be kept and firmly observed in all the towns where the cocket-seals are in Scotland, and also at Kirk-cudbright, according to the articles which are sent thither.

TRANSLATION.

To our lord the king and his council pray the master and the brethren of the hospital of Saint Leonard of Berwick: that whereas their predecessors were seised of a carrucate of land, with the apurtenances in Liddesdale in Scotland, which was confirmed by each king of Scotland successively, until the time of master William Feugers, then master of the hospital; at which time thieves from Scotland came there by night and killed their brethren and their people who were there, and burned their houses, and destroyed all. And ever since, the lords of Soules in their times and the others who have entered since by means of our lord the king since the conquest, have kept them out of the land until sir John de Saint John, who was then guardian of Scotland, by command of our lord the king, verbally put them into that land; out of which land the lady of Wake, and sir John Butetourte, and sir Demum Rolandus filius Alani, frater ejusdem Roderici (qui fidem et fidelitatem domino regi in curia sua personaliter præstitit), erectis vexillis, manu armata venit ad homines nostros in servitio domini regis existentes, et quosdam ex eis occidit, et eos omnibus bonis suis 'et navibus' spoliavit. Et dicti Rolandus et Rodericus terras domini regis de Sky et de Leogos in magna parte deprædabant, et homines in eisdem insulis inhabitantes occidebant, et incendia faciebant, et mulieres violenter opprimebant, et naves in servitio domini regis existentes infra immunitates ecclesiarum comburi faciebant; et dictæ insulæ per præfatos in tantum fuerunt adnichilatæ quod dominus 'rex' ex eis parum aut nichil de firma sua poterit lucrari.

Nos autem, Deo comite, cum omni posse nostro accedimus ad prædictos prædones et pacis perturbatores mitigandos vel debellandos, qui contra majestatem domini nostri regis talia perpetrare audebant.

Unde eidem domino nostro regi supplicamus ut per suas literas districte præcipiat nobilibus de Ergadia et de Ross ut nobis veniant in succursum, si eorum auxilio contra prædictos malefactores indigentiam habeamus. [1297. June?]*—Statement by Alexander of the Isles, in which he vindicates his Conduct.*¹

Memorandum quod iste est processus . . . anno M.CC. nonogesimo septimo, videlicet, quod cum Laclan Magrogi fecisset hom . . . utum, dictus L. ad insulas rediens, dominicas domini regis terras sibi usurpavit . . . ricum prædæ totaliter devastavit. Super quibus homines insulani Alexandro de Yle nuncios miserunt . . . negotiis, et dictus Alexander misso exercitu securitatem recepit a præfato Rodrico et ab hominibus dicti . . . competente quod starent regis voluntati et mandatis. Postmodum vero prædictus Lachlan, unico filio . . . nec ulla permissione retenta præfatas insulas domini regis invaserunt, ac in eisdem insulis . . . incendia et deprædationes atrociter perpetrarunt, et irruentes ex improvise super quosdam ex hominibus dicti Alexandri ipsos galeis et bonis suis spoliaverunt. Quo facto, insulani iterato ad Alexandrum destinaverunt nuncios, petentes quod dictus dominus Alexander personaliter cum suo exercitu ante dominicum in Ramis Palmarum versus insulas access . . . et dictum Lohlan, in primis cum ita esset obsessus quod resistere non posset, ad voluntatem domini regis recepit permissionem ut . . . filium suum regi daret in obsidem, et quod castrum suum redderet ad regis voluntatem. Ipso vero L. sic constituto . . . prædictus Rodricus frater suus cum potentia dicti L. et suggestione, ut dicitur, quosdam de hominibus dicti Alexandri . . . ad quandam insulam divertere hostiliter invasit, et ex eis circiter triginta interfecit; quo facto, Alexander cum tota potentia sua prædictum Rodricum per terram et mare persecutus est, ita quod vi compulsus se reddidit, et in vinculis tanquam priso tenetur.

Dictus vero Lochlanus filium suum Alexandrum reddidit in obsidem, et etiam castrum, et quia continebatur in littera domini regis quod Alexander de Yle salvo custodiret præfatos malefactores, donec aliud a rege reciperet in mandatis, dispositis insulis regis meliori modo quo poterit, et pace reddita huspandis et mulieribus (qui prius non audebant pro timore dictorum malefactorum extra castrorum refugia commorari), duxit secum dictum Lochlan donec per ballivos regios esset consultus quid de tali homine foret agendum. Sed dictus L., relicto filio in obside et fratre suo in carcere, relictis etiam galeis suis, clam et furtive recessit, et (ut creditur) quantumcunque poterit, homines et terras regis molestabit.

Dictus vero Alexander, præmissis fratribus suis cum exercitu ad dictum L. prosequendum, et ad terras suas in manu regis sesyandum, personaliter cum expeditione cito sequendum . . . sit dictus Alexander ubi dictus L. receptabitur, nisi in terris domini Alexandri de Ergadia, cujus filiam . . . vel in terris domini Johannis Cumyn¹ de Lochabor, quia homines dictæ terræ dicto L. et Duncanio filio domini Alexandri [de] Ergadia contra pacem domini regis jurati fuerant et uniti quod juxta castrum Johannis Cumin in Lochabar duæ magnæ galeæ fuerant, quibus in insulis non fuerunt majores . . . dictæ terræ renuerunt tradere Alexandro d'Eyl, juxta tenorem litteræ domini regis, sed potius Duncanum filium Alexandri de Ergadia, qui adhuc fidelitatem domino regi non fecerat, in capitaneum receperunt, ac dictas galeas festinanter ad mare præparaverunt, ac homines hinc inde in regno se regi objecerunt. Dictus Alexander, misso navali exercitu, dictas galeas sibi petiit reddi ex parte regis, tanquam constituto capitaneo per litteras regis de Ergadia et de Ross; sed homines existentes in præfato castro simpliciter galeas reddere renuerunt, et homines Alexandri de Yle petentes naves cum sagittis et carellis vulneraverunt, nec aliquam fidem voluerunt facere quod dictæ galeæ contra regem non venirent. Et quia homines dicti Alexandri propter pugnam immi-nentem de castro non poterant galeas salvas educere, vel ad mare trahere, ipsas in eodem loco combusserunt, ne terris et fidelibus regis forent periculum et discrimen. Dictus etiam Alexander de Yle, audito quod Senescallus Scotiæ contra dominum regem insurrexit, quoddam castrum cum baronia, nomine Glasrog, quæ prædictus Senescallus tenuit, in manu regis sesiauit et adhuc detinet, paratus ad alias terras procedere ad domini regis commodum et mandatum, et de terris quas occupat nomine regis secundum ordinationem suam et ballivorum suorum in omnibus parere.

Dictus vero Alexander de Yle supplicat domino Johanni de Benestede quod ista ostendat domino regi cum effectu, et quod super istis dominus rex voluntatem suam dicto Alexandro celeriter transmittat, et quod etiam supplicat domino regi de expensis dicti Alexandri in expeditionibus ejusdem anni et quod nichil recepit de quingentis libris [?] quas dominus rex anno præterito sibi concessit, nec a balliva sua adhuc super eisdem aliquam sufficientem habet responsionem. Super hiis et omnibus aliis petit regis voluntatem.

peace. Whereupon it was determined that no expedition should be made until the earl's arrival; and thus matters have gone to sleep, and each of us went away to his own residence.

Sire, I understand that they have informed you of the peace, such as it is; and if you do not know it clearly, I send it to you under the seal of the bishop of Glasgow, along with his letter of credence, and the credence which his clerk told me, which things the said bishop then sent me to Roxburgh, praying that I would confirm the peace by my letters and my seal; which it did not at all become me to do without your orders.

Sire, if it be your pleasure, do not take it amiss that I have so long detained your messenger, for of a truth I have been much annoyed that I have not been able to tell you better news. And I keep William de Ledbury, your other messenger, by your leave, by whom I will let you know better tidings after the arrival of the earl, if God will. Sire, may God save and keep your noble lordship, and increase your honours.

Letter to the king on the peace at Irvine, and other matters connected with Scotland.

A nostre tres honorable seigneur, saluz, si li plet e tute-voys pret e appailla a soen loyal service.

Cher sire, come vostre Tresorer d'Escoce avoit fet assembler graunt genz, e les mena jekes a Rokeburghe pour avoir corou sur vos enemis ke estoient en la compainie le éveskes de Glagu, le count de Karrik, e le Seneschalle d'Escoce, si vindrent mounsieur Henri de Perci e mounsieur Robert de Clifford a Rokburghe, e menerent en lur cumpainie mounsieur Alisaundre de Lindesey e monsieur William Douglas, e neus moustrerent ke il ount receu a vostre pes les enemis ke estoient levez encounter vous decia la Mer d'Escoce ; e pour ceo retourmes nous jekes a Berewike pour attendre la venu mounseigneur de Garenne. E si adunks ne se moustrent vos enemis plus apertement a vostre pes ke il ne ount fet jekes en cia, mout de genz quident ke ceste pes serra ben cruce.

TRANSLATION.

To our very honourable lord, greeting, if it please him, and [I am] always ready and prepared for his faithful service.

Dear sire, your Treasurer of Scotland having caused to be assembled a large troop, and having led them to Roxburgh to have attacked your enemies, who were in the company of the bishop of Glasgow, the earl of Carrick, and the Steward of Scotland, there came sir Henry de Percy and sir Robert de Clifford to Roxburgh, and brought in their company sir Alexander de Lindsay and sir William Douglas, and told us that they had received to your peace the enemies who had risen against you on this side of the Scottish sea ; wherefore we returned to Berwick to await the arrival of my lord of Warren. If, then, your enemies show themselves the readier to come to your peace than they hitherto have done, many people think that this peace has been well devised.

E pour ceo, cher sire, ke mounsieur William Douglas¹ ne avoit pas tenu les covenanz ke il fit a mounsieur Henri de Perci, si est il en vostre chastel de Berewike en ma garde, e si est uncore mout sauvage e mout araillez ; mais joe le gardrai en teu manere, si Deu plet, ke il ne sorta mie. E la eglise de Douglas est voide, e vaut ben cc. mars, sicum joe ai entendu, e si il le vous pleseit doner a vostre Tresorer d'Escoce, joe crai ke vous le averiez ben employe ; kar, a la foy ke joe vous doy, il ne se faint point en vos busoynes, einz ment mout penible entente de fere les ben.

Cher sire, vos enemis sount esperpliez e abayiz, e si la pes ke hom lur ad done en noun de vous ne vous plese mie, il serrount tost mis a hounte, si vous le commaunde a ceuz ke mainent vos busoines en ceste parties. A Dieu, cher sire, soyez vous comaunde.

Escrites a Berewike sur Twede, le xxiiij jour de Julii.

And, dear sire, because sir William Douglas has not kept the covenants which he made with sir Henry de Percy, he is in your castle of Berwick, in my keeping, and he is still very savage and very abusive ; but I will keep him in suchwise that, if it please God, he shall not get out. And the church of Douglas is vacant, and is well worth 200 marks, as I have heard ; and if it please you to give it to your Treasurer of Scotland, I believe that you will have bestowed it well ; for, by the faith which I owe you, he does not grow slack in your service, but takes the greatest pains to make things succeed.

Dear sire, your enemies are dispersed and dismayed, and if the peace which has been given them in your name does not please you, they shall speedily be disgraced, if you so order it to those who manage your affairs in these parts. Dear sire, be commended to God.

Sire, your commands wished me to go without delay into Scotland, to do what the earl of Warren shall tell me . . . commandment.

I went thither ; and at Berwick I found the earl and the other good people of your council, on the Sunday before the Gule of August, and they told me . . . should undertake the keeping of Scotland, and I answered that always would I willingly do your orders in all matters where I thought that I should succeed to your honour. But, because, sire, . . . insufficient in skill and ability to venture on such a high matter, unless I had wherewith to support it to your honour, I dare not do so. But my body and my goods, and all that I have, shall always be ready to do your service. For the goods which I have would be too small, as far as I can stretch them, well to keep that land to your honour (for they do not extend beyond 1000*l.*), and to keep 50 armed horses. And moreover I do not think that I in my poverty can be able either well or honourably to keep the land in peace to your profit and honour, when such a nobleman as the earl can-

And therefore, if it be [your pleasure], be pleased to have regard to the condition of the land, and the great loss which you might therein incur through my want of skill were I foolishly to undertake such a high matter . . . to sustain it to your honour; and thereupon will you intimate your will, and the manner how it shall please you, that I may know how therein you may have honour and profit, . . . and I have satisfaction from you and your approval. For, neither for any peril of my body nor for any expenditure of my goods to their utmost stretch, will I ever hesitate to do whatsoever . . . so that your honour in all things and above all things may be safe.

William de Fitz Warin in all pleas and complaints moved or to be moved by the said sir William, or against him, in Ireland, and this writ cannot reach the said sir Reginald because of the war in Scotland ; and moreover, since the death of sir Richard de Waldegrave, who was the constable of Stirling castle, we have placed the aforesaid sir William, together with other good soldiers, in the said castle to guard and keep it for the service of our lord the king aforesaid, we have opened the aforesaid letter of our lord the king, and have received the attorneys of the aforesaid sir William, whom he has placed in his stead before us to gain or to lose in the pleas and complaints aforesaid in the form of the writ aforesaid. That is to say, sir Robert Logan, John de Berkwey, and Roger Dru. And therefore we pray you that thereupon you would cause the letter of our lord the king aforesaid to be made for him. And we send you the writ aforesaid under our seal, together with this letter.

Written at York, the Friday next before the feast of S. Michael.

Edward, by the grace of God king of England, lord of Ireland, and duke of Aquitaine, to Edward his dear son and his council, greeting.

Whereas the earl of Warren and Hugh de Cressingham have testified to us by their letters that sir John de Vaus has conducted himself well in our service in the parts of Scotland for some time past, and has promised to come hither beyond the seas to serve us, and has made no request to receive his lands which are in our hands, but has not yet come to us, we command you that whenever the said John is willing to come to us to serve us abroad, you show him such favour, in regard to the deliverance of his lands, as you shall see fitting to be done. Provided, however, that you take of him such security as has been taken from the others who are in the like condition with himself.

have seizin of the said rent, according to the purport of his charter, saving the right of our lord the king and others. And the said earl ordered sir Walter de Agmondesham, then chancellor of Scotland, to make for him a writ to the sheriff of Roxburgh to have seizin of the said rent. And because the Scots again rose against our lord the king, and sir Hugh de Cressingham and other good Englishmen were killed at Stirling, the said writ was not delivered to the said Thomas, nor has he since received nor levied anything of the said rent.

Wherefore he prays our lord the king that he would be pleased to command his chancellor of Scotland to make for him a writ for the aforesaid rent similar to that which was formerly made for him by the order of our lord the king ; seeing that he is, and always has been, in his fealty.

To you, my lords, who are of the council of my lord the king show the abbot and convent of Jedburgh and sir Ive de Aldburge that they have understood that the constable of Jedburgh has told the king that he cannot keep his castle of Jedburgh without the forest of the same place. And, therefore, my lords, we the abbot and convent of Jedburgh and Ive de Aldeburge have offered to the king and you in his name to undertake the custody of the castle by a sufficient bachelor, partly at the charges of the king and partly at our own,—that is to say, 500 marks each year, until the end of five years; and to repair the houses of the castle at the cost of the king and partly at our own,—that is to say, 500 marks by year until the term aforesaid, so that the king shall thank us for it.

Henry de Empingeham and John de Karletone, clerks, shall say to Richard de Bremesgrave this message, which the same Richard shall tell, as from the king, to sir Robert Hastings and his brother, and the other men-at-arms who are in their company at Roxburgh and Jedburgh. And also he shall tell the same message to sir William Latimer and to the rest of the garrison of Berwick ; namely, that our lord the king has gone to Dumfries to raise his peel and to reinforce the castle. And his son has gone with him and many other good men-at-arms ; and he has sent sir John de Saint John towards Galloway to bring to a good end his affairs in those parts. Wherefore the said Richard shall pray them that they, on their part, shall make some good expeditions upon the forest of Selkirk, and elsewhere, where they shall perceive

To his very honourable father in God, sir Walter, by the grace of God bishop of Chester, his bachelor John de Kingston sends honours and reverences as to his lord.

Be it known to you, sire, that I have received a letter from our lord the king in which I am commanded to request you to deliberate respecting the request which sir Robert de Lesse and sir Thomas de Bannebury have made to the king for robes for themselves, their esquires, and their pages; and as to the request which the crossbowmen, who were in the garrison at Bourg and Blaye, and who are now in my company, have made to the king for their robes and shoes. Whereupon, I pray you, sire, to deliberate, since I cannot come to you, and hereupon to send me your pleasure.

Sire, as to the news in our neighbourhood, I have to tell you that the earl of Buchan, the bishop of St. Andrews, and other earls and great lords who were on the other side of the Scottish sea, have come to this side, and were at Glasgow on the day on which this letter was made; and by . . . they intend to go towards the borders, as is reported among them and their people who are in the forest. And whereas sir Simon Fraser comes to you in such haste, let me inform you, sire, that he has no need to be in such a great hurry, for there was not by any means such a great power of people who came into his jurisdiction but what they might have been stopped by the garrisons if sir Simon had given them warning.

“Sire, monsieur Simon Frezer servent a vostre service, qe mut me ad prie qe jo vous requerge qe vous le cez excuse de ceo . . . a vostre reale seignurie qe vous eiz regard a ceo qe il `vous` est bons e loiaux, e bien e loiaument se est porte devers nous, e mot se peyne . . . promis. no where else. And if it so happen that your mills are broken or out of order by reason of a flood for some time, whereby they cannot be used, and they wish to grind elsewhere, or in their own houses, they should bring their grist to the farmer of your mills and grind it where they please. And if they do not do this, and if they can be convicted of having ground elsewhere without having made compensation to the farmer for their grist, they may be seized on their way toward their houses after having ground, and the horse shall be forfeited to you, and the meal shall go to the farmer of your mills. And I have frequently cautioned them, as from you, sire, to observe this custom as they were wont to do before the conquest, and as they ought to do of right, and have distrained them by many distresses, which distresses the warden has delivered by plevin; and the burgesses have answered me that they have not their condition of burgesses as they used to have, wherefore they will observe no such custom, nor will they do so without especial commandment from yourself, if they are not to have their position as burgesses, as they used to have before the conquest.

TRANSLATION.

Be it remembered that in regard to the town of Berwick it is appointed by the king and his council that they should have sixty men-at-arms and 1000 foot soldiers, whereof 100 should be cross-bow-men; and that they should receive the king's wages in such manner as the sheriff of Roxburgh, the sheriff of Jedburgh, and sir Simon Fraser with one accord have awarded. And let them see that they make no foray anywhere, or engage in any important affair against the enemies, without having a reinforcement from the troops in the said garrison every time they shall be so employed of thirty men-at-arms and 500 footmen. Of these (as it shall appear to be necessary) the warden of the town shall at one time be the leader of the foray, and at another time the constable of the castle, according as the case may require; but so that always one of them, whenever such expeditions occur, should remain as the keeper of the castle and the town until the others return.

[A. D. 1298-9 ?]
The credence of the Norwegian ambassadors to treat with king Edward.

In evidentiā suā remissa nunciis domini regis per illustrissimum regem Norwegiæ ista continentur ;—

Primo, quod idem dominus suus rex Norwegyæ regratiatur vobis, domino Edwardo regi Angliæ illustri, pro conciliis et amicitiiis, nec non ceteris curialitatibus, karissimo fratri Erico, quondam regi Norwegiæ, et specialiter sibi ipsi et suis, prius sæpius factis et impensis.

Secundo, quod paratus est omnia pro vobis facere quæ cedere poterunt in vestrum commodum et beneficium, et sicut frater pro fratre solet facere.

Item, tertius articulus continet ista :—

Primo, quod Insulæ Sodorenses ultra Scotiam ad regem et regnum Norwegyæ pertinebant jure dominii pleno et perfecto. Tandem rex Norwegyæ, nomine Magnus, regi Scotiæ, nomine Alexandro, prædictas insulas secundum conventionem habitam inter ipsos ad firmam sibi concessit, annuatim certa pecuniæ summa reddenda regi Noruegyæ, vel ipsius legitimis successoribus, pro eisdem, minus tamen medietate justorum redituum earundem ; sub tali conditione, quod quicumque in solutione defecerit annuæ pecuniæ, insulæ prædictæ essent in manu et dominio regis Noruegyæ, prout antea.

Mortuo vero Alexandro rege Scotiæ et præfecto in regem Johanne Baylolve, quidam occupaverant prædictas insulas, qui in solutione annuæ pecuniæ regi Noruegyæ reddendæ pro eisdem deficiebant. Propter quod idem rex Noruegyæ dicit earundem insularum dominium et ordinationem ad se fore devolutam. Præterea, omnia ista vobis fuerunt semel ostensa apud Aberconeueu¹ per nuncium Erici regis Noruegyæ, et vestrum super hiis petiit concilium; cui per litteram vestram consulistis quod jus suum in eisdem quam cicius et commodius posset recuperaret, de quo concilio confiditur adhuc dominus Haquinus rex Noruegyæ. Nam sine vestro concilio, voluntate vel assensu, petere vel innovare aliqua contra earumdem detentores non intendit. Scientes tamen quod inimici vestri et sui quam sæpius latitant in eisdem, in vestri et sui dampnum et illusionem evidentem. Unde si vobis placet ut ipse ex illa parte pro recuperando jure suo et Scotos expungendo, vestros inimicos et suos, veniat, et vos ex ista parte pro recuperando jure vestro veniatis. Petit litteram a vobis ad omnes senescallos, præpositos, ballivos et ministros vestros in Scotia, ut adjuvent homines suos; et consimiliter litteram paratus est dare vobis ut homines sui adjuvent homines vestros.

Item, petit idem Haquinus rex Noruegyæ litteram a vobis ad senescallos vestros, præpositos, ballivos, et ministros in Scotia, ut justitiam sibi, vel suo legitimo procuratori, faciant fieri de dote, et de ejus arreragiis, dominæ Margareta, filiæ Alexandri regis Scotiæ, uxoris Erici regis Noruegyæ.

Item, eodem modo petit litteram super exitibus regni Scotiæ secundum sententiam vestram latam apud Berwyke pro filia regis Erici pro eo tempore quo ipsa vixit.

Item, petit idem rex Noruagyæ litteram a vobis super hoc quod mercatores regni Noruagyæ, vel homines sui, et naves eorum, venientes ad Angliam, vel alibi infra costeros vestros, non attachientur nec arrestentur nisi pro debitis propriis, et non pro . . . alicujus nisi fidejussoris, non obstante jurisdictione . . . ordinaria villarum vestrarum maritimarum.

Be informed, very dear sire, that you have rejoiced us much by the rescue which you have promised us, and that we will do your commands at our power as far as we are able. And know, sire, that your honour shall never be injured by us as long as our victuals hold out. And we give you to understand as a certainty that John de Soules and the earl of Buchan with their power are lying at Loudon, and sir Simon Fraser at Stanhouses, and sir Alexander de Habernithyn and sir Hubert de Morham. Wherefore, dear sire, if it please you to vouchsafe to send 100 armed horse, with a good chieftain, to-morrow at the latest, we will discomfit all that company, and we will have all the country round about us. And be informed that all the country is rising, because we have no troops to ride upon them.

Letter to John de Segrave on the affairs of Scotland.

TRANSLATION.

The king to sir John de Segrave, greeting.

Whereas sir William de Cantelou is at this time sending into Scotland two of his valets, the bearers of these present letters, well mounted and arrayed, to serve us in those parts at the cost of the said William until Christmas next to come, as we lately asked the said William by our letters, we command you to receive the same valets, and array them along with the others of their condition who are serving us in these parts in the best manner that you can. And all the other affairs which concern the keeping of the country, and the advancement of our business there, do you appoint and arrange in such wise as may be to the safety and the security of our affairs in the said parts, and so that no danger nor loss may there happen either to you or your people.

That we should tell the said Richard and Alexander that the Scotch have openly assembled with all their force in the lands ; and that the Irish troops (who are in their pay for nine weeks and more) have heard it said that money had arrived at Berwick, and they are remaining in the country round about Linlithgow, where they can have nothing whereon to live excepting for ready money, unless they rob the people who have come into allegiance to the king ; and they perceive plainly that no one cares for them nor for their lives ; whereupon they have packed up their baggage to depart to their own country. And sir John de Mentethe and sir Alexander de Meyners, who had come to treat in good form for peace, broke up their business by reason of the scarcity which they saw among the said people.

Nov. 3.

Know ye that whereas I (being in the homage, faith, and allegiance of my lord Edward king of England, lord of Ireland, and duke of Aquitaine), led by bad advice, have raised, and caused to raise war against my said lord, and thereto was assenting and procuring and aiding his enemies, overtly and covertly to my power, against my said homage, fealty, and allegiance, whereof I perceive, know, and acknowledge myself culpable, I, of my good and free will, have surrendered and do surrender myself entirely, absolutely, and completely to the will of my said lord. And albeit that, moved by pity towards me, he has granted me a special grace, and beyond what I have deserved in this matter, as to my pardon of life and limb, and of release from imprisonment, nevertheless, I have submitted and do submit myself entirely to the will of my said lord, and will and grant that he should do to my body, and whatever I have or can have, and all the lands and tenements which were mine at any time, or which may fall to me henceforth in any manner whatever in the land of Scotland or elsewhere, and that he should ordain, establish, and do fully at his will, and according to what he pleases.
